

Medical Disclaimer

All programs and digital materials provided by Mastering Homeopathy are intended solely for educational and general informational purposes. None of the information presented constitutes or substitutes for medical diagnosis, treatment, prescription, disease management, clinical guidance, or professional healthcare advice.

These educational programs do not confer or imply any official title, authorization, license, or certification in the field of medicine, paramedicine, or any other healthcare profession. None of Mastering Homeopathy's programs have been evaluated, reviewed, verified, or approved by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), state health authorities, professional licensing boards, or any health regulatory agency in any country.

Users must not rely on the educational content as a basis for personal health decisions and are required to consult a licensed and qualified healthcare professional for any health-related concerns. Any practical application of the content to third parties must fully comply with local laws, professional qualification requirements, and ethical standards, and remains the sole responsibility of the User. By participating in the program, the User explicitly agrees not to use the educational content as if they were authorized to provide professional healthcare services.

Mastering Homeopathy assumes no liability for any direct, indirect, incidental, consequential, material, moral, or commercial damages that may result from the User's interpretation, application, or sharing of the content. The institution is likewise not responsible for any decisions or actions taken by the User regarding their own health or the health of potential clients.

In case of a medical emergency, Users should immediately call 911 (in the United States) or contact their local emergency medical services in their respective country.

By acknowledging this statement, the User affirms that they understand and accept that:

- The information presented does not constitute professional medical advice;
- The programs offered are not accredited or approved by any regulatory authority as medical training; and
- Any application of the knowledge gained, as well as all related outcomes, are undertaken entirely at the User's own risk and responsibility.